

No bones about it -- USANA joint-support supplement awarded seal of approval

Released : 10/18/2018

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 18, 2018 /PRNewswire/ -- USANA's dedication to product quality has been its calling card since the company began in 1992. That commitment to excellence is further proven with USANA's most recent seal of approval award from third-party tester, ConsumerLab.com. The latest USANA product to be approved by ConsumerLab.com is its Procosa[®] supplement, which is uniquely formulated to help maintain healthy cartilage and joints.*

"Having our products tested and approved by companies like ConsumerLab.com are vital in maintaining consumer trust," says Dan Macuga, USANA's chief communications and marketing officer. "USANA's record of third-party approval on its supplements shows that we have always and will always put the quality of our products first."

ConsumerLab.com is an independent assessor of the quality, purity and label accuracy of health and wellness products, putting each item through rigorous testing. To be awarded a seal of approval from ConsumerLab.com, USANA's Procosa supplement had to contain 100 percent of the claimed amount of glucosamine used to keep joints and cartilage strong and healthy, and to meet quality levels set for disintegration.

"Healthy joints are critical to preserving an active, independent lifestyle," says Dr. Brian Dixon, USANA's executive director of health and science education. "The Procosa supplement is formulated with the scientifically advanced InCelligence[®] Joint-Support Complex — a combination of vegetarian glucosamine and Meriva[®] Bioavailable Curcumin that supports healthy joints. Additionally, the Procosa supplement promotes a healthy immune and inflammatory response to reduce pain after exercise."*

Along with Procosa, several other USANA[®] supplements have been recently certified by ConsumerLab.com, including USANA[®] Probiotic, Vitamin D, CoQuinone[®] 30, BiOmegaä, USANA[®] MagneCal Dä, Visionex[®], Pure Restä and Body Rox[™].
