Sharing your experience

According to the World Federation of Direct Selling Associations (WFDSA), consumers benefit from Direct Selling, because of the education, home-shopping & delivery convenience, and personal service it provides.

According to economist and bestselling author Paul Zane Pilzer, "Direct sales is the best way to educate consumers about products and services they do not know about."

Direct Selling is used to introduce unique products or services with a high added-value, which needs to be explained to consumers.

People often ask: Why are these products not available in stores?

Most retailers can not take the time to fully educate their customers. The personal endorsement & recommendation of a Direct Seller who is also a satisfied customer is a valuable service and is highly appreciated.

Sharing their experience is a great advantage for Direct Sellers creating "know, like and trust' with their customers.

Why Direct Selling?

What Direct Selling Requires?

- Developing your communication & relationship skills.
- As little as a few hundred dollars to invest in products and marketing materials in the beginning.
- Between five and 10 hours per week to start.
- Being willing & able to learn and teach others.
- The DESIRE to have your own successful business for home.

The Direct Selling Market

Direct selling is a proven, rapidly expanding world-wide business model for the marketing of products and services directly to consumers.

There are thousands of companies involved in Direct Selling, 95% are using a Multi-Level Marketing compensation plan. The 10 largest companies have had a combined revenue of $35 billion in 2011 and 11% annual growth!

The weak economy has had little impact on the industry. Global direct sales increased 10 percent from $139.7 billion in 2010 to $153.7 billion in 2011. Here are some of the leading companies; revenue's in millions:

Company	Country	Sales 2010	Sales 2011	Change	%
Avon	USA	$10,731	$11,112	$381	4%

Building Residual Income

One of the special advantages of Direct Selling is the possibility to earn residual income through building a Network Marketing organization. Residual income is money you continue to earn after your initial efforts have ceased. For this reason it is also referred to as "passive income."

You are rewarded for the sales revenue of the people you introduce into the business and the people they introduce, earning income from the revenue generated by your networking organization.

Below is an example of a possible of a scenario group's growth.

You introduce new distributors, and they do the same:

Month	Distributors	Month	Distributors
1	2	5	20
2	3	6	35
3	5	7	65
4	12	8	95

The larger your group, the higher your organization's revenue.

Myths & Misconceptions

Myth: “You have to recruit your friends and family”

Recruitment is done by the army. You are looking for business partners.

In Direct Selling you are an "Independent Contractor." It's your business. You own it and you choose who you work with.

You can build your business with your warm market (people you know) or cold market (the rest of the world).

About 30% of all new business partners are introduced through the warm market, 70% through the cold market.

Sponsoring is about taking personal responsibility for new participants in the business, ensuring they have a good understanding of the responsibilities associated with owning and succeeding in a business of their own.

Sponsoring is about caring, educating and serving your partners.

It creates a win² (win-x's-win) partnership between the sponsor and the enrollee.

Myth: “It looks like a pyramid”

All organizations are shaped like pyramids: Governments, churches, schools, colleges and universities, the military, sports teams, small business, civic groups, clubs... even families.

In any situation you will have people "above and below" you in terms of responsibility and leadership. One big advantage of Direct Selling is that the people above have a vested interest in your success and will assist you in achieving your goals. Unlike other business models, Direct Selling is based on cooperation NOT competition.

Most countries have strict laws making "pyramid sales" illegal. If Direct Selling companies were pyramids, more than 65 million people around the world would be in jail. Direct sellers are involved in legal companies.

Myth: “Direct sellers who drop out are stuck with the inventory they purchased”

Most companies repurchase inventory acquired in the past 12 months for at least 90 percent of the purchase price if a Direct Seller decides to leave the business. In most jurisdictions, this "buy back" policy is a matter of law.

“I know somebody who failed”

As with all endeavors in life and business, people sometimes fail. Getting involved in Direct Sales is NOT a guarantee of success. Many people play football, not everybody is playing as a professional and not all professionals are winners.

If you are seeking investment advice, would you speak with a bankrupt broker? Talk with people who are successful in Direct Selling, they love to share their stories, strategies and even secrets.

If you want to become a successful football player the best thing to do is to talk with a champion— not with somebody who quit the team.

Connect with the proven leaders, make new friends.

This is not very effective...

Income streams

Over 50 percent of Direct Sellers report that their net income— after taxes and expenses— is cash positive.

Whether you are a career business-builder, or a stay-at-home mom, or seeking a more fulfilling work experience, you will find that Direct Selling people support one another and create friendships and partnerships that often last a lifetime.

Fully 89 percent of active Direct Sellers surveyed rate their personal experience in Direct Selling as excellent, very good, or good.

About 80 percent only use the products. More than 20 percent are interested in the products plus the business opportunity and take the full- or part-time career to a professional level.

Direct Selling is fueled by rewarding your success.

Can you do it?

More and more people from all walks of life setup Direct Selling business with great success every day:

- Unemployed people & entrepreneurs
- Stay-at-home moms & full time corporate workers
- Teachers & students
- Doctors & lawyers
- Shop keepers & accountants
- Retired people & top sports stars
- Millionaires & people struggling financially
- Young & old people
- Men & women

Yes, you can— if you want to!

How to start

Experienced Direct Selling leaders will tell you that to be successful, you need to choose a product or service that you fully & completely believe and use yourself.

Educate yourself— Learn the basics. Order some products, set up your business (replicated, corporate) website, get familiar with the company facts & figures, policies & procedures.

Most people who fail and quit in the first months do so because they do not understand the basics of the business. Take a week or so to learn more about your company, products/services and business systems.

Without any education you are like a bakery that is producing bread without a recipe, the proper ingredients or know-how. Nobody is interested in over-salted or burned bread...

All you will ever do is...

No one will ever truthfully tell you Direct Selling is easy— but those who know will say this business is simple. They know, "All you will ever do is learn how to do something, then teach others how to do what you already know how to do successfully."

First, learn how to USE the products or service. Once you have done that successfully, you can teach others how to do the same.

Learn how to successfully RECOMMEND the products to people. Once you have done that, you can show & tell others how to do that, too.

Then find people who want a business— people just like you who share the same desires you had when you joined, men and women who are looking for just what you were looking for.

SPONSOR them into the business and then teach them how to do with others what you just did with them.

And you will do this same thing— learn to do something then teach others how to do what you've already done— all the way up to the very top levels of success in your company.

Anybody can do this business. Preparation, however, is "King and Queen."

A successful Direct Seller is somebody who has an interesting story to tell and has credibility ("know, like & trust") with others. Self-discipline, good work ethics and a proven DMO (Daily Method of Operation) are key strengths you will want to develop.

Making a list of people you know is one of the first steps. Notifying them of your enthusiasm & excitement with your new business and asking for their support is a non-threatening, fast & effective way to share your opportunity with all your contacts.

Social networks on the Internet (such as Facebook, LinkedIn, Twitter, etceteras) are another great source of contacts and spreading the word.

Fact: The average person personally knows between 100 and 230 people and has acquaintances with 1,000 more.

Personal Development

To succeed in Direct Selling, you must develop YOU. To increase your chances of success in anything, you must continually grow as a person, and learn the communication and leadership skills necessary to achieve your goals.

Your business is about you and what you can and will make of your opportunity. People who are attracted to Direct Selling tend to be more open to possibilities and making positive change.

Of all the components of your home-based business, the one you must sharpen and develop daily is you the Entrepreneur... the Business Partner... the Business Owner... the Team Leader. It's fun and rewarding to do so!

Your Direct Sales business will only grow as big and as fast as you do— personally & professionally.

Conventions & Meetings

Top Earners encourage you to go to meetings and conventions.

This business is built on belief in yourself and your abilities.

Conventions and meetings are fun and essential to attend as this will allow you to see and be a part of the big picture!

Many man & women have turned to Direct Selling to make their personal & business dreams come true.

You will get energized, focused and learn tons of strategies & skills to accomplish more, faster, attending a regional, national or international convention as well as local meetings.

Top Earners are always attending meetings. It's smart to connect with them and learn from these experienced leaders. Events (and the events around the events: dinners, coffee, breaks) are the place to be!

Sponsoring

Sponsoring is taking personal responsibility for the new participants you bring in the business. Sponsoring is— in the original meaning of the word— a solemn promise.

It is ensuring that your people have a good understanding of the principles & practices associated with owning their own Direct Sales business and the inner & outer actions they must take to succeed.

Educating them about the products and mentoring them along the way as they make sales and sponsor other participants is required.

Sponsoring creates a win² partnership between the sponsor and the enrollee.
